

Responding

If you are in a liturgical tradition, you will know that it is actually still Easter! The season concludes this Sunday (May 31st) with Pentecost. It has been an odd time to be celebrating Easter as the world shuts down. Perhaps you yourself missed celebrating the resurrection of Jesus with a congregation. I am inspired by the quote of Pope John Paul II, a man who experienced the death of most of his family at a young age as well as living in Poland through World War 2 and communist occupations, "We are the Easter people and hallelujah is our song."

In the midst of this pandemic, I hope that we can be individuals and an organization that live as Easter people, confident in the resurrection, and that hallelujah will be the song we sing. God is at work today!

In response to what God has been saying to you throughout this Campus Gathering, choose one embodied form of worship to express your meditations and praise to God. It may be playing music, going for a nature walk and talking out loud with Jesus, making art to express what Jesus has been saying to you, dancing with all your might etc. Worship him as Easter people, a family member of the Resurrection and the Life.
